My Classmate

Candice Ng is eight years old this year. She is thin and tall. Her hair is braided into two long braids. She has small eyes and a big mouth. She also wears pretty bright red glasses.

Candice likes Maths because she thinks doing sums is fun and interesting. Her hobbies are playing the piano, skipping and reading. She likes reading books published by Sunrise Company best. She is good at drawing as well. During Visual Arts lessons, I always hear the teacher praise her for her excellent drawing. Her favourite food is egg sushi. She thinks it is delicious because it is a blend of sweet and savoury flavour.

Candice is very diligent. When I see her drawing, she works hard. When I see her doing some difficult sums, she works hard. When she is practising her lines in a speech, she works hard. She is also sociable. She is like a magnet that attracts people to her. She is polite. She says good morning to everyone every day. She is humorous too. She tells jokes at recess. Everyone crowds around her.

I really appreciate her politeness. I will try to improve myself and be polite to others like her. In my heart, she is a wonderful friend. I often suffer from stress and she is the one who always cheers me up. That's why we will never split up. I think the greatest gift in life is friendship and I already have it.
