

My Dream Job

By Heiley Ho (5A)

My dream job will be working as a lawyer. Lawyers help needy people to seek justice, which is meaningful and challenging.

If I become a lawyer, I will represent the clients in court to settle legal matters. However, lawyers have to do a plenty of preparation work before going to the court. For instance, they need to prepare the best defences and provide professional legal advice to the clients. They will find cases related to their clients' matters so that they can persuade the judge.

Lawyers should be intelligent since they ought to handle disputes in smart and efficient ways. It is important for lawyers to be sociable too because they need to communicate with many people, such as clients and colleagues.

Being a lawyer is not a walk in the park. Lawyers need to obtain a Degree in Law with the completion of a period of two-year employment as a trainee solicitor.

Lawyers need to possess good interpersonal skills as they have to build confidence and trust with their clients so that the clients are willing to share their personal information with them. They also need to be good at problem solving so as to provide the best suggestions for their clients based on their expertise and experience.

In order to achieve my dream, I am going to read various books to enrich my knowledge. I am also trying to improve my communication skills so that I will be capable of talking with people smoothly.

I hope I can be a lawyer and live a meaningful life in the future.
